WTO 2030?

New and disquieting developments - including emerging trade wars, the growing trend towards unilateral measures and the looming paralysis of the WTO Dispute Settlement Body - are putting the multilateral rules-based system at risk. What WTO do we envisage for 2030? What are the solutions ahead? What can parliamentarians do to bolster free and fair trade generally and in the WTO in particular?

How can technological development benefit the people?

New technologies develop very rapidly. Digitalization, robots, artificial intelligence, the internet of things and 3D printing will revolutionize how we produce, work, move and consume. The world economy will need a trade policy framework that embraces change and responds to the many fast-paced transformation processes. Will the WTO and its members be able to deliver on the new challenges? How can we make sure that technological development benefits the people? How can parliamentarians contribute to achieving this?
