Concept of Modern Parliament

As a concept, modern parliaments are marked by the following characteristics:

1 Transparency. Parliaments ensure accessible information with regard to parliamentary activities of all committees.

2 Information Technology. Technology is utilized to ensure public access to information, either through websites, social media, or other forms of digital technology.

3 Representation. Parliaments as the people's representative bodies fight for public aspirations.

IT for Representation and Transparency

A number of web-based applications have been build to support the House in carrying out its functions, such as:

Official website,
to provide relevant information to parliamentary activities, including MPs database, law-making processes and results of parliamentary meetings.

Parliament TV
streaming broadcast, to allow live broadcast of Parliament TV to be enjoyed from all over the world.

Public service websites, to support online public service, e.g. grievance mechanism, public information service, research center, e-library, and others.

Web-based Applications Challenges

- Popularity of smartphones/ handheld gadgets

- Smartphones or gadgets have been parts of daily activities

- Web-based applications is considered impractical and outdated

- Stagnant numbers of web based users

- Parliamentary Agenda

- Summary Report

- Minutes of Meetings

Online Public Grievances

Fast and easy as it requires nothing more than just the user's information

Can add pictures or documents directly from the device

Analyst will forward these questions and complaints to relevant committees based on their topics, and subsequently delivered to MPs to be discussed in meetings

Open and transparent, people can see all public complaints and aspirations, as well as their resolution status. They can also comment on or just give it a thumbs up or down

Online Public Grievance

12 Channels Video Streaming

Features:

Streaming of Parliament TV channel

Live broadcast of on-going meetings in each committee

Broadcasting both live and recorded programs

Challenges and Future Development

Internet access in Indonesia has not been evenly distributed, especially in remote areas

Challenges for analysts to determine weather a complaint is real or hoax

Questions and complaints delivered to MPs still outside the app (offline)

Members should be able to reply directly through the app, and communicate interactively with the constituents
